Subject: Experiences with noise and speed

I live on the North side of the train bridge and in an area of the stop sign that "street racers" hit a redline in their cars the redline being around 8K RPM this is quite loud especially on illegally modified exhausts, Separate from this there is someone that puts up a sign saying kids playing; the reflective green child with a pink flag, and I've noticed more people actually go the speed limit be it not the racers but commuters as well some street racers have a spotter car that goes out ahead of them at the speed limit to alert them of stings from police waiting for them if a report happens or hazards as well I assume. You cant even go out on a balcony or deck and relax and watch a video or read a book because you cant hear it over or cant concentrate over the road noise.
