I heartily agree with banning any coerced, coercive or violent form of therapy for any person or group for any reason or concern! It is unfortunate that this was once one of the many things people thought was good. However I urge you not to make a similar though opposite mistake, even in good faith, of banning what people may choose to seek of their own free will and initiative... should I not be allowed to seek councillors of my choice because I, of my own free will and intent, wish to reduce or repress my own non-heterosexual attraction or behaviour?

This is a violation of my freedoms of belief and right. So I urge you to think through the Prohibited Business Bylaw and not to make similar mistakes of our fore-fathers, for which our children will have to look back in regret.

Kind Regards,

Sandra
