I support the proposal for a 40 km/hr residential street speed limit in Saskatoon. As a driver, this is a reasonable speed for a residential street given the driving condition: parked cars, often narrow or curving streets, snow banks in winter, walkers, bikers, and children often on or near the road. As a pedestrian, I certainly support this proposal, especially when trying to cross, or to walk along without sidewalks, residential streets. As a grandfather of 5 little grandchildren, I strongly support this proposal. Prince Albert, Calgary, and Edmonton have such speed limits. So should we, to make this a safer, more walkable, and more liveable city.
