Comments:

I wrote in support of the Swale Watchers' recommendations for boundaries for the Small and Northeast Swales. I urge councillors to take these recommendations seriously as one way to demonstrate the city's commitment to ecological sustainability through preserving and enhancing these ecologically diverse and threatened areas. This is a significant part of what makes a city liveable and what will help, to a small extent, mitigate against climate change. I think this is also way cheaper than the millions that are being poured into creating storm drainage ponds in older suburbs (like mine) in order to deal with the effects of climate change. Please be forward thinking and go further than the options currently before the Council: adopt the Swale Watchers' recommendations.
