To Saskatoon City Council,

As a cyclist & pedestrian parent living within blocks of the intersection of College & Wiggins, the tragic death of Natasha Fox last year has profoundly impacted my thoughts around the vulnerability of myself and my young family as a users of Saskatoon streets. My concern regarding the safety risks to active transporters in Saskatoon was further heightened by the unfortunate death of Darin Kinniewess that followed shortly thereafter. I'd like to see as much done as possible to make being a cyclist and pedestrian safer in our city.

Councilor Block's June 2023 motions to address cycling issues were a good start. The move toward utilizing rapid deployment in new, adaptable infrastructure is something I support and I keenly await the Road Safety Audit at College Drive and Wiggins Avenue where Natasha died.

I'm happy to see many of the CIMA+ consultant's recommendations (1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 11, 12, 13, and 14) already being applied or supported by administration. I am concerned that none of the cycling-specific recommendations (Numbers 8, 9, and 10) were supported by administration at this time.

I understand that these three recommendations are complicated, but I would urge council to strive to implement numbers 9 and 10 as soon as administration can resolve the issues around transit negotiations and staffing resources.

In the meantime, I also support recommendation number 8 (a painted bike box and lane along Wiggins Avenue, with a "no turn on red" prohibition).

While some of the reports' conclusions regarding this recommendation are valid (the physical space of the street may not lend itself to a perfect solution), the requiring of "driver adherence" or a supposed "false sense of safety" are not.

I do not believe that a heightened awareness of cyclists on this street could do anything but make it safer. Even if the finished infrastructure is not ideal in the eyes of administration, it could not be worse than the current configuration in which Natasha died. With concerted effort to keep the streets clear of debris, and signage highlighting the nature of the intersection, I believe recommendation 8 could add greatly to the actual safety of cyclists and pedestrians.

Please reconsider the SPCT's defeat of recommendation 8 and help make College and Wiggins a little bit safer than it was exactly 11 months ago.

Thank you so much.
