Comments:

PLEASE reconsider a removal of parking requirements. Leaving this option up to developers to decide what is needed is not a realistic option. Sad to say, developers are not known for their consideration to existing homeowners when building homes. This is a business for developers and profit is the goal.

To say this is not a review of street parking is not logical. Street parking is almost the only thing affected by such a change. Are we somehow forgetting cold winter weather when vehicles need to be close enough to your house to plug in?

I am personally aware of older neighbourhood and new neighbourhoods where street parking has become a nightmare and a war.

I know there is a theory that we are trying to do away with vehicles and use bikes or buses. Some of us have reached the age where those aren't easy options. Lots of Saskatoon citizens have family who live in rural Sask or other places where we use vehicles to travel to visit so even if we don't use a vehicle daily, there is one at our home. Please don't make Saskatoon where neighbours are pitted against each other to get a parking spot when they come home from work.
