Comments:

I have lived on University Drive 34 years. Before a two hour parking restriction was put in place on our street, it was always lined with cars, presumably University students and staff. The cars would sit all day and there was no way to park near our own homes. Once the parking was restricted, residents and students and University staff could all park here within reason. I fail to see how lifting the restrictions will improve conditions. Lifting the zoning bylaws and now parking restrictions seems like a step backwards. These bylaws and restrictions should be updated of course but simply eliminating them is irresponsible and shows a complete lack of foresight. Why couldn't the City slow down the decision making to see where the housing is being built and then decide where parking restrictions need to be eliminated . It seems that that is how they were put in place to begin with and worked. Thank you for your consideration.
