Dear Mayor Block and Members of Saskatoon City Council,

I am writing to strongly urge Council to reconsider a commercial-to-residential tax ratio of 1.88:1 and to approve the 1.71 that will be going forward at the next Council meeting from the Governance and Priorities Committee which met on April 9, 2025.

I would also like to respond directly to Councillor Jeffries' comment on the March 26 Council Meeting that he has not heard any concerns from Saskatoon businesses regarding the 1.88:1 ratio. As a business operating in Saskatoon, I want to be clear: businesses are concerned.

The current environment is extremely challenging for local businesses. We are contending with:

- US tariffs that affect our reconstruction capacity and raise the costs of goods
- Inflation that has driven up the cost of everything from raw materials to wages
- Tight and shrinking profit margins as we try to stay competitive
- Ongoing pandemic recovery, which continues to impact staffing, supply chains, and demand
- Rising crime, including theft and vandalism, that adds to our operating costs
- A shrinking labour pool, with both skilled and unskilled workers in short supply

We can offer is a tax environment that signals to businesses that we are welcome here, that Saskatoon wants us to succeed.

I urge you to reconsider the 1.88:1 tax ratio and listen to the many business voices across this city who are speaking up—right now—with real concerns.

Sincerely,
Sheldon Wasylenko, President
Rayner Agencies Ltd.
